Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) Information

For information concerning PCT member countries, see the notice appearing in the Official Gazette at 1267 O.G. 34, on February 11, 2003.

Either the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) or the European Patent Office (EPO) may act as the International Searching Authority (ISA) for an international application filed with the United States Receiving Office or the International Bureau (IB) as Receiving Office where at least one of the applicants is either a national or resident of the United States of America. However, the EPO is no longer a competent ISA, within the meaning of PCT Article 16(3), for international applications filed by US residents or nationals on or after 01 March 2002 in the USPTO or IB as Receiving Office, and where the application contains one or more claims directed to the fields of biotechnology or business methods. For the definition of what the EPO considers to be precluded subject matter in the fields of biotechnology and business methods, applicants should see the "Notice from the President of the European Patent Office," dated 26 November 2001, and which is published as Annex A in the "Notice Concerning EPO Competence to Act as PCT Authority" in the Official Gazette at 1255 O.G. 878, on February 19, 2002.

The European Patent Office may act as the International Preliminary Examining Authority (IPEA) for an international application filed in the United States Receiving Office or the International Bureau as Receiving Office where at least one of the applicants is either a national or resident of the United States of America, provided that the European Patent Office acted as the International Searching Authority. However, the EPO is no longer a competent IPEA, within the meaning of PCT Article 32(3), for international applications filed by US residents or nationals in the USPTO or IB as Receiving Office where the corresponding demand is filed with the EPO on or after 01 March 2002, and where the application contains one or more claims directed to the fields of biotechnology, business methods or telecommunication. For the definition of what the EPO considers to be precluded subject matter in the field of telecommunication, applicants should see the "Notice from the President of the European Patent Office," dated 26 November 2001, and which is published as Annex A in the "Notice Concerning EPO Competence to Act as PCT Authority" in the Official Gazette at 1255 O.G. 878, on February 19, 2002.

The search fee of the European Patent Office was increased, effective June 1, 2003, and was announced in the Official Gazette at 1269 O.G. 132, on April 22, 2003.

International fees were changed, effective on April 15, 2003, due to a change in the exchange rate of the U.S. dollar with regard to the Swiss franc, and were announced in the Official Gazette at 1268 O.G. 76 on March 25, 2003. A change in the maximum number of designation fees payable, with effect from January 1, 2002, was announced in the Official Gazette at 1253 O.G. 88, on December 25, 2001. A change in the reduction for electronic filing, with effect from April 15, 2003, was announced in the Official Gazette at 1268 O.G. 76, on March 25, 2003.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Patent and Trademark Office
[Docket No.: 2003-P-018]

Request for Comments on the Study of the Changes Needed to Implement a Unity of Invention Standard in the United States

AGENCY: United States Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce.

ACTION: Notice; request for comments.

SUMMARY: The United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) has established a 21st Century Strategic Plan to transform the USPTO into a quality-focused, highly productive, responsive organization supporting a market-driven intellectual property system. As part of this plan, the USPTO will conduct a study of the changes needed to implement a Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) style Unity of Invention standard in the United States. Prior to starting a detailed study, the USPTO is seeking public comment on a number of issues to help guide the scope and content of a study on the adoption of a Unity of Invention standard in the United States.

Comment Deadline Date: To be ensured of consideration, written comments must be received on or before July 21, 2003. No public hearing will be held at this stage of the study.

ADDRESSES: Comments should be sent by electronic mail message over the Internet addressed to: unity.comments@uspto.gov. Comments may also be submitted by mail addressed to: Mail Stop Comments—Patents, Commissioner for Patents, PO Box 1450, Alexandria, VA 22313-1450; or by facsimile to (703) 872-9411, marked to the attention of Robert Clarke. Although comments may be submitted by mail or facsimile, the USPTO prefers to receive comments via the Internet. If comments are submitted by mail, the USPTO would prefer that the comments be submitted on a DOS formatted 3 1/2 inch disk accompanied by a paper copy.

The comments will be available for public inspection at the Office of Patent Legal Administration, Office of the Deputy Commissioner for Patent Examination Policy, located at Room 3D65 of Crystal Plaza 3/4, 2201 South Clark Place, Arlington, Virginia, 22202, and will be available through anonymous file transfer protocol (ftp) via the Internet (address: http://www.uspto.gov). Since comments will be made available for public inspection, information that is not desired to be made public, such as an address or phone number, should not be included in the comments.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Robert A. Clarke directly by phone at (703) 305-9177, by e-mail at robert.clarke@uspto.gov, by facsimile to (703) 305-1013, marked to the attention of Robert A. Clarke, or by mail addressed to: Mail Stop Comments—Patents, Commissioner for Patents, PO Box 1450, Alexandria, VA 22313-1450.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Unity of Invention standard (in PCT applications) and United States restriction practice (in United States applications) are mechanisms by which the USPTO determines whether patent applicants are entitled to examination of all of the claims in an application by determining whether the claims are directed to a single invention, or to multiple inventions that are capable of supporting separate patents.

The Unity of Invention standard is a component of many foreign patent laws and is also used in international search and preliminary examination proceedings conducted pursuant to the PCT.

United States restriction practice is based on 35 U.S.C. 121, which provides that: "[i]f two or more independent and distinct inventions are claimed in one application, the Director may require the application to be restricted to one of the inventions." This allows examiners to limit applicants to one set of patentably indistinct inventions per application. The USPTO may "restrict" the application to one set of patentably indistinct inventions: (1) If the application includes multiple independent and patentably distinct sets of inventions, and (2) if there is an undue burden to examine more than one invention in the same application. Restriction practice was designed to balance the interest of granting an applicant reasonable breadth of protection in a single patent against the burden on the USPTO of examining multiple inventions in a single application.

Current USPTO policy allows for restriction between related inventions as well as between independent inventions. However, if the USPTO adopts a Unity of Invention standard, restriction would, as a general rule, no longer be permitted between certain related inventions that currently may be restricted under United States restriction practice. Some examples of related inventions that are often filed together and typically can be restricted under current United States practice before a prior art search is conducted, but do not lack unity under the Unity of Invention standard, include: (1) A process, and the apparatus for carrying out the process; (2) a process for making a product, and the product made; (3) an apparatus, and the product made by the apparatus; (4) a product, and the process of using the product.

A lack of Unity of Invention is different from restriction practice in some major aspects. Unity of Invention is practiced, with slight variations, in PCT applications and in applications examined by the European Patent Office (EPO) and the Japan Patent Office (JPO). The primary consideration for establishing Unity of Invention is that the claims are entitled to be examined in a single application if the claims are so linked together as to form a single general inventive concept, premised on the concept of a common feature (referred to as a "special technical feature" in the context of PCT Rule 13) that can be present in multiple inventions within a single application. As long as the same or corresponding common feature is found in each claim and that common feature makes a contribution over the prior art, the claims comply with the requirement for Unity of Invention. If the inventions lack a common feature that makes a contribution over the prior art, then a holding of lack of Unity of Invention would be proper. The determination of whether an invention makes a contribution over the prior art can effectively be done only after a prior art search for the common feature has been performed.

Adoption of any of the various styles of Unity of Invention practice will likely have significant impacts on current USPTO examination practices and organization. The degree of the impacts will depend upon the particulars of how the Unity of Invention standard is implemented. A complete study will need to consider, at a minimum, the impacts and changes to: quality, pendency, workload, revenue, fees, patent term adjustment, examination resources, organizational structure of the Patent Examining Corps, and the United States patent classification system.

Issues for Comment

Issue 1: Unity of Invention as practiced in the EPO is interlinked to EPC-style claim drafting and EPO claim treatment practice, including certain limitations on claiming that are not present in current United States patent practice. For example, the EPO (under EPC rule 29(2)) usually allows only one independent claim per category of invention (category of invention is that of product, process or apparatus of use), and emphasizes the search and examination of independent claims. In contrast, the USPTO searches and examines every claim, independent and dependent, and every limitation of every claim. In addition, EPC- style claim drafting is generally termed "central claiming". In central claiming, the inventive concept is essentially claimed in the independent claim. If the independent claim is found allowable, the EPO examination will not be unduly concerned with respect to the dependent claims, according to EPO Guidelines, C-III, 3.6.

Should the USPTO study ways to adopt EPO claim treatment practice, including normally allowing only one independent claim per category of invention, when considering ways to adopt a Unity of Invention standard, and why?

Should the USPTO emphasize the examination of independent claims and modifying the examination of dependent claims in the same fashion as the EPO?

If so, would there be any reason to consider changes to the presumption of validity under 35 U.S.C. 282 of those dependent claims?

Issue 2: In United States restriction practice, the applicant can file a subsequent application that is directed to an invention that was divided out of the parent application. These are called Divisional applications. Divisional applications are typically subsequently filed and are not normally examined concurrently with the parent application. Divisional applications retain the benefit of the filing date of the original application if the conditions set forth in 35 U.S.C. 120 are met. This allows an applicant to continue to pursue protection for the inventions subject to restriction that were in the original application without being affected by double patenting. All member states of the Paris Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property (1967) (including Japan and all EPC member states), as well as the EPO, also provide for the filing of Divisional applications. However, the PCT does not yet provide for the filing of Divisional international applications. Consequently, the PCT rules provide for applicant to pay for the search and examination of additional inventions that "lack unity" in a single international application. Adoption of a Unity of Invention standard could, in some instances, require examining more inventions during the examination of a single application than occurs presently, thereby possibly causing delay in the examination of other applications if examination resources are limited. This could increase the USPTO's average patent pendency time.

If the USPTO adopts a Unity of Invention standard, should the USPTO provide applicants the option of a PCT-style Unity of Invention practice to pay for additional inventions that lack Unity of Invention in the same application?

If so, should the USPTO consider any changes to patent term adjustment under 35 U.S.C. 154(b) for applications which have more inventions examined in a single application under a Unity of Invention standard than are permitted under current practice?

In view of the fact that examining multiple inventions in a single application could cause examination delay in other applications, what other revisions to patent term adjustment provisions under 35 U.S.C. 154(b) should be considered by the USPTO, or should the USPTO also consider revising the order that cases are taken up for examination?

Issue 3: Under the PCT, examination proceeds on the basis of the first claimed invention if applicant does not pay for additional inventions that lack unity.

Should the USPTO adopt, for national applications, the practice currently used under the PCT of examining the first claimed invention where there is a holding of lack of Unity of Invention?

Optionally, where Unity of Invention is lacking: (1) Should the USPTO examine the first claimed product, or the first claimed invention if there are no product claims; or (2) should applicant be given the opportunity to elect an invention to be examined?

Issue 4: A determination of lack of Unity of Invention is predicated on assessing whether a common feature (referred to as a "special technical feature" in the context of PCT Rule 13) defines a contribution over the prior art. Certain PCT member states assess this requirement only with respect to patentable advances over prior art. However, issues of lack of support, enablement, clarity, or conciseness, generally resulting from excessive breadth of claims or excessive numbers of claims, may occur that render examination unduly burdensome. In such circumstances, some International Authorities will make a "partial search" declaration to limit the extent of search and examination. The USPTO does not follow this practice. On the other hand, it may be viewed that if the common feature or "special technical feature" is not adequately supported by the disclosure or lacks utility ("industrial applicability" in the PCT context), the special technical feature does not make a contribution over the prior art.

When adopting the Unity of Invention standard, should the USPTO follow the practice of performing only a "partial search" if the examination of the entire scope of the claims is unduly burdensome due to non-prior art issues?

Alternatively, should the USPTO assess adequacy of the disclosure and industrial applicability in addition to the prior art when determining whether the claims' common feature makes a contribution over the prior art?

Issue 5: The USPTO's 21st Century Strategic Plan is predicated on a certain level of revenue to provide the resources needed to meet quality and timeliness goals. The Plan currently does not account for any additional resource requirements, and any corresponding revenue shortfalls, that may result from adopting a Unity of Invention standard. Statutory fees under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and (b), in the aggregate, are set to cover USPTO operating costs. If the average cost of processing patent applications goes up, the USPTO will need to increase fees. Assuming that there will be extra costs of examination under Unity of Invention, possible increases would be: (1) All filing fees; (2) all filing fees and an additional fee for examination of claims that lack Unity of Invention with an elected invention; (3) increased issue and/or maintenance fees of all applications; (4) increased issue and/or maintenance fees for applications paying the additional invention fee; or (5) a combination of two or more of (1) through (4) above.

Which of the above approaches should the USPTO propose in regard to any fee increases?

Issue 6: Adopting a Unity of Invention standard would impact the number of inventions that would be examined in a single application, and require examining multiple inventions that cross multiple disciplines in a single application. Due to the current level of technical specialization in the Patent Examination Corps, the USPTO will have to consider the impact any change would have on the ability of the USPTO to maintain high quality examination.

How should work be assigned to ensure that examination quality would not suffer if examiners have to examine multiple inventions from different disciplines in a single application?

Should the USPTO consider: (1) Using team examination, similar to the EPO where applications are examined using three-person teams called "examination divisions" (2) extending the use of patentability report procedures provided for in section 705 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (8th ed. 2001) (Rev. 1, Feb. 2003); (3) maintaining the current process of a single examiner on an application; or (4) using some other option of how work is performed by examiners?

Issue 7: One way of adopting aspects of Unity of Invention without making any statutory changes would be for the USPTO to use its authority under the continued examination provisions of 35 U.S.C. 132(b) (authorizes request for continued examination or RCE practice) to permit applicants to pay an RCE fee and submit or rejoin claims to additional inventions after prosecution has been closed on a first invention, so long as the claims presented with the RCE fee either depend from or otherwise include the features of the allowed claims which make a contribution over the prior art. In this option, most applications will continue to be examined under the USPTO's current restriction practice. Under any new provisions to implement this option, when a claim is determined to be allowable, the applicant would be entitled to request continued examination under the Unity of Invention standard. The required submission would be additional claims that either depend from or otherwise include the features of the earlier-examined claims that are in condition for allowance (if such additional claims were not previously pending in the application).

Should the USPTO consider this option?

Should this option be available only to applicants whose applications are published?

If so, how should the new RCE fee be set relative to the current fee structure?

Issue 8: As a second example of adopting aspects of Unity of Invention without making any statutory changes, the USPTO could use its authority under continued examination to permit requests that the USPTO continue examination of claims which were withdrawn from consideration. This option would require applicants to make a decision to request continued examination rather than file a divisional application, to pay a fee for the treatment of one additional invention, and to present claims drawn only to that additional invention. This option would be available in addition to the continuing option of filing a divisional application.

Should the USPTO consider this option?

If so, how should the loss in issue and maintenance fee collections be offset relative to the current structure?

Issue 9: In view of the previous questions and the range of issues and options, should the USPTO consider: (1) Seeking a change to 35 U.S.C. 121 to adopt a Unity of Invention standard (and if so, what would such statutory change be, including whether such a statute would provide for applicants to pay for additional inventions that lack Unity of Invention to be examined in the same application); (2) maintaining the current restriction practice in the USPTO; and/or (3) modifying the USPTO rules and procedures to adopt aspects of Unity of Invention practice without making any statutory changes (if so, in what manner should rule changes be made)?

Issue 10: Do you have other solutions to offer which are not addressed in this notice?

Notification of United States Patent and Trademark Office Patent Application Records being Stored and Processed in Electronic Form

Summary

All patent application related papers received by or mailed from the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO or Office) will be date stamped, indexed, scanned into electronic image form, and loaded into the USPTO's new image storage, retrieval and messaging system called ePhoenix. All processing of the patent applications will be performed on the electronic file and will constitute the official file for all purposes.

Background

The USPTO is installing an electronic image capture system to replace the standard paper processing of patent applications. The file history (including the specification, oath or declaration, drawings, references, amendments, Office actions, foreign and non-patent literature and file jacket notations) of pending patent applications will be electronically scanned and loaded into ePhoenix. All processing and examination will be performed by the examiners, technical support staff, and any other USPTO staff or contractors using the ePhoenix system.

To pilot the ePhoenix system and gain experience in working with automated files and processes, a prototype has been operating in three selected Art Units (1634, 2827 and 2834) since November 2002. The Office has scanned into ePhoenix thousands of new and amended applications for those Art Units. Technical support staff have successfully processed the applications in preparation for examination. Examiners have examined the applications using electronic images of the file. The patent publishing contractor has received the completed examination file history in electronic form to publish issued patents.

During the prototype period, all of the original paper copies constituting the official electronic files have been maintained at the USPTO, unavailable to the Technology Centers for the normal course of business, but retrievable if needed. These paper copies remained the "official copies" of the applications in the prototype (i.e. they constitute the records that are scheduled by the Office, under the direction of the National Archives and Records Administration, for retention as the official records of the Office).

After the prototype period concludes, the electronic images used during the prototype will undergo a quality control regimen and upon successful completion, will be designated as the official electronic records. They will then be merged with the electronic records generated as part of the production scanning process for the rest of the Office. The paper formerly official copies will be re-scheduled as source scanned paper copies, and treated as noted below.

Official Electronic Records

The advantages of having electronic records established and maintained in a standard industry electronic format are readily apparent. For example: applications can be viewed by multiple employees at various locations within the Office and by the public; backup and recovery of lost files can be assured; and parallel processing of applications can be performed by USPTO employees in different locations at the same time.

The advantages to the public are evident: electronic public records made available via the Internet can be viewed on computer terminals anywhere in the world. Confidential records can be reviewed by the respective applicants and attorneys over secure Internet links, so documents that have been submitted can be seen, printed and validated. Documents submitted in paper can be checked for completeness, and documents submitted electronically can be fully reviewed, to help applicants learn to trust electronic submission systems.

The USPTO will rely on the image records stored in ePhoenix as official records. All paper records of pending files, or newly received applications after June 30, 2003, will be processed into the ePhoenix system. Processing steps include: 1) Indexing each paper document by type of document; 2) Scanning a batch of the paper documents, separated by separator sheets, into images; 3) Performing quality control on the files of scanned images; 4) Loading the files of scanned images into the ePhoenix system; 5) Placing the scanned paper documents into boxes for storage.

After this process, Office employees and applicants will view and use the electronic records in ePhoenix for prosecuting the application. Electronic records will be used and accepted as the official records of the USPTO.

After scanning, the paper scanned source copies will be boxed in accordance with their date of scanning by the Office, and maintained by the USPTO in nearby storage for at least two months, allowing sufficient time for review of the electronic copy by a USPTO employee in the normal course of business. Thereafter, the paper scanned source copies will still be available in off-site warehouses, but with a longer retrieval time (e.g. 2-3 days). The system will maintain the box number and location of the source scanned paper copy for each record to ensure prompt retrieval when necessary.

Authority for Electronic Records

Congress has mandated "the Director to develop a user-friendly electronic system for the filing and processing patent and trademark applications. This electronic system must also allow examiners and applicants to send all communications electronically, and should allow the PTO to process, maintain, and search electronically the contents and history of each application." (see Pub. L. No. 107-273, § 13103(a), 116 Stat. 1758, 1899 (2002)). The ePhoenix system described in this notice comprises part of the automation initiatives presented by the Office in response to this directive.

Making Electronic Records Official

To make electronic records official, Office systems must (a) satisfy the requirements of OMB Circular No A-130, especially the standards for Records Management and (b) satisfy both the requirements of the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (GPEA-Pub. L. No. 105-277, Title XVII), 44 USC § 3105 and 36 C.F.R. § 1234 — Standards for the Creation, Use, Preservation, and Disposition of Electronic Records.

The Office 1) has thoroughly reviewed the electronic records management procedures involving all the steps in the conversion of the paper received, generated, or sent by the Office; and 2) generated a request pursuant to 36 CFR § 1234.10 for submission to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) to have USPTO electronic files rescheduled as official records.

In anticipation of this process, the USPTO developed a Technical Standard and Guideline (TSG) for Electronic Records Management (TSG-ERM). The TSG-ERM includes a compilation in one detailed checklist of all requirements of the records management sections of OMB Circular A- 130, of the GPEA, and of 36 C.F.R. § 1234. The TSG-ERM is available at http://www.uspto.gov/web/patents/ifw/index.html. Each of the requirements of the TSG-ERM was evaluated and applied to the installed parts of the ePhoenix system, with itemized descriptions of how the requirements were satisfied. The results of this analysis were published as the ePhoenix ERM Compliance Paper, which is also available at the ePhoenix web site http://www.uspto.gov/web/patents/ifw/index.html. The ERM Compliance Paper, which includes quality control and quality assurance methodologies, satisfies the requirements of A-130 and 36 C.F.R. § 1234. The Office will ensure that the electronic records are generated and stored in a secure system, and that controls are followed to ensure the integrity of the records.

In a parallel effort, at the request of NARA the Office prepared a Data Location Document that identifies the automated information system (AIS) that stores each of the electronic parts of the set of records that constitute the electronic file. Currently, almost all of the records are maintained on the ePhoenix system itself, with a few data elements maintained on the Office financial system (RAM). In the future, if a more sophisticated file structure using other formats is adopted, the Data Location Document will be revised. The Data Location Document is available at http://www.uspto.gov/web/patents/ifw/index.html.

The USPTO's request to NARA seeking to have its electronic files rescheduled as official records was prepared based on the contents of the Data Location Document.

The International Context

The USPTO operates both as a national office administering the U.S. patent laws, and under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) as a Receiving Office (RO), International Search and Examination Authority and National Office.

Electronic patent files (records) at the USPTO comply with the relevant provisions concerning electronic records under the Patent Cooperation Treaty. The regulations of the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) were amended in October 2001 to include Rule 89*bis*.1, which reads in part: "International applications may . . . be filed and processed in electronic form or by electronic means, in accordance with the Administrative Instructions, provided that any receiving Office shall permit the filing of international applications on paper."[i]

The USPTO's electronic records will be maintained in accordance with the standards indicated in the PCT Administrative Instructions. The internal automated systems of the World Intellectual Property Organization are of the same general design, facilitating the future transfer of applications under the PCT to and from the International Bureau in an efficient all-electronic manner.

Time Schedule

On June 30, 2003, or soon thereafter when the system meets the Office's quality control and quality assurance standards, records in the ePhoenix system will become the official records of the USPTO. Any paper records subsequently received, scanned and entered into the ePhoenix system will become official records, and the paper originals will be treated as source scanned copies. All new national applications (except special situations, such as applications under secrecy order) filed after the date of record rescheduling will be stored electronically regardless of whether they are filed on paper or by the Electronic Filing System (EFS).

Between December 2003 and May 2005, the Office plans to physically move its principal office to Alexandria, Virginia. During this transition period, those employees and contractors who process the patent applications will have to share applications across the two sites. The Office goal is to capture in ePhoenix as many of the 600,000 pending patent applications as possible so that all employees can access the files from their respective locations.

Thus the USPTO's move schedule sets a time goal for the scanning of the patent applications in order to avoid transporting paper files back and forth between the two sites. Ideally, the Office seeks to have each Technology Center's records fully electronic in advance of its move, in order to minimize the amount of paper that must be transported to the new site.

Quality of Electronic Records

To assure that the records of the Office are admissible, the records will undergo a regimen of quality control and quality assurance procedures. These procedures were developed in consultation with ERM specialists from the industry, and are compatible with those procedures generally used in government and commercial enterprises that convert their paper records to electronic form. Maintenance procedures, page counting and statistical sampling methods, as well as strong quality assurance procedures, are all used to keep the records at the level of quality recommended by Electronic Image Management (EIM) standards as defined in ANSI/AIIM TR34-1996[ii]. These quality control procedures can be summarized as follows:

First, the completeness of each document is assured by a double counting system; the incoming documents are manually counted in the indexing process that takes place prior to the scanning process, and then a scanner automatically checks that the number of pages scanned conforms to the number of pages indexed. The scanning machinery checks for misfed papers, the most common source of machine error. Second, quality is assured by pre-calibration of the scanning equipment before each 8-hour shift. Finally, a scientific sampling of the scanned images is made, and the selected documents are hand verified. This check is made each day before the images are uploaded into ePhoenix. The number of images sampled is determined in accordance with standards established in ANSI/AIIM, Sampling Procedures for Inspection by Attributes of Images in Electronic Image Management and Micrographic Systems (ANSI/AIIM TR34-1996).

Quality assurance is based on a user-feedback mechanism. In the normal course of business, the users who first view the application after scanning are made aware of their processing just after the scanning operation, and will check that the pages have been scanned. Usually, with a new application, this responsibility will rest with a formalities examiner in the Office of Initial Patent Examination. With amendments, the Legal Instruments Examiners of the Technology Center may be the first users. Whoever the users are, they are alerted to check for problem scans, and given electronic capability to report bad scans to a central location. A designated office (currently the Office of Initial Patent Examination) receives these reports, and investigates the causes of the problem. If a pattern of defects can be noted, the designated office is charged with fixing the root cause of the defects.

Submitted Paper Copies

After being scanned, the paper copies of the documents are no longer official records. The imaged patent application documents are the records used in the regular course of business by the Office to process and examine the patent applications. The Office can use the paper source scanned copy for comparison purposes in the rare circumstance where a question arises concerning the electronic image.

During the early phases of the ePhoenix system deployment, the paper source scanned copies will be retained. However, after the system has been thoroughly tested, the Office ultimately plans to destroy the paper copies under a NARA-approved record schedule. After the schedule is approved, at the end of the retention period authorized by the schedule, the paper copies will be destroyed.

The Office has proposed to amend 37 C.F.R. § 1.14 (b) to limit access to the paper source scanned copies to situations where comparison with the original paper is needed, or where ordered by a court. See Changes to Implement Electronic Maintenance of Official Patent Application Records, 68 Fed. Reg. 14365, 14374-76 (Mar. 25, 2003). Ordinarily, access to the paper source scanned copies will not be permitted or required.

Eventually, the paper source scanned copies will be transported in their boxes to the USPTO Records Center for longer-term storage, and ultimately destroyed according to an authorized NARA retention schedule. Historical documents, or those determined by the Director to be of sufficient significance to be retained, may be transferred to archives of the National Archives and Records Administration.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents and Trademarks
Available for Public Use in Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs), receive patent and trademark information for the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Many PTDLs have on file patents issued since 1790, trademarks published since 1872, and select collections of foreign patents. All PTDLs receive both the patent and trademark sections of the Official Gazette of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and numerical sets of patents in a variety of formats. Patent and trademark search systems in the Cassis optical disk series are available at all PTDLs to increase access to that information. It is through the optical disk systems and other depository materials that preliminary patent and trademark searches may be conducted through the numerically arranged collections.

Each PTDL offers reference publications which outline and provide access to the patent and trademark classification systems, as well as other documents and publications which supplement the basic search tools. PTDLs provide technical staff assistance in using all materials.

All information is available for use by the public free of charge. However, there may be charges associated with the use of on-line systems, photocopying and related services.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent and trademark collections among the PTDLs, and their hours of service to the public vary, anyone contemplating use of these collections at a particular library is urged to contact that library in advance about its collections, services, and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

Partnership PTDLs provide enhanced and expanded services for which fees are charged. They offer on-line patent text and image searching, on-line trademark searching, and videoconferencing for examiner interviews and workshops. They accept disclosure documents on site, order file wrappers, assignment documents and certified copies for their customers, and host a variety of seminars aimed at specific audiences, including practitioners, paralegals, and independent inventors. Currently, partnerships are located at the Great Lakes Patent and Trademark Center (GLPTC) at the Detroit Public Library in Detroit, Michigan and the Sunnyvale Center for Innovation, Invention and Ideas (SCI^3) at the Sunnyvale Public Library in Sunnyvale, California.

SECTION 2.— INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).
